Three Injured As Auto
Hits Train Near Ber-

Columbiana county's traffic death toll for the year jumped to 27 yesterday with the death of Arthur Bickle, 55, at East Liverpool, as Salem state highway patrolmen investigated at least three accidents in this district.

Bickle, a pottery worker, was run down by an unidentified motorist at the corner of Jackson and West Fourth sts., in East Liverpool,
shortly after midnight Saturday.
He died Sunday afternoon in the East Liverpool City hospital of internal injuries.

He was the sixth pedestrian killed in the pottery city this year.

Police Seize Coupe

Police seized a coupe with a broken left headlight and damaged right fender, owned by George Gottchell, 23, of East Liverpool, Gottchell, who was not arrested, reported to police two hours before Bickle died, that his car had been stolen.

Gottchell said he parked his car on W. Sixth st., in East Liverpool, and walked two blocks to a cigar store. When he came back 10 minutes later, he said, the car was gone. He discovered it later in a damaged condition but did not inform police until the next morning.
Coroner Arnold Deven
withdrew his verdict pending completion of the police investigation.

Three youths were injured when their automobile crashed into a moving Pennsylvania railroad freight train at Cook's crossing just south of Berlin center on the Western Reserve road at 9:05 p. m. Sunday, according to state patrol reports.

Injured were the driver of the machine, Arthur Hurd, 21, of Geauga lake; Lena Hartzell, 19, and her sister, Evelyn Hartzell, 15, of Berlin Center.

Leg Is Fractured
Lena suffered a fractured right leg and cuts about the face and knees. Evelyn Hartzell and Hurd received lacerations of the face and knees. All were brought to Salem
City hospital.

The box car was derailed when the automobile struck it, State Patrolman C. W. Calk said. R. W.
Wilson of New Castle, Pa., was engineer of the train, which was moving northeast at the time. William Downey of Sharpville, Pa., was the conductor.

No one was injured when cars driven by Joseph Bernstein, 30, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and Charles H.
Morris, 19, of Signal, collided on Route 154 at 4:30 p. m. yesterday.
Bernstein was cited by the patrol
for reckless operation.

An accident at the junction of Routes 14 and 7 at 5:45 p. m. Sunday involved autos driven by James Storax, 58, of Ambridge, Pa., and George Sandusky, 16, of New Brighton, Pa. No one was hurt.

Food For Thought

Oklahoma City—Butch, a mongrel pup owned by Henry Van Buskirk, was permitted to carry home
a can of dog food.

Now he practically camps at the store. As soon as a customer opens the door, Butch dashes in, grabs a can of the same variety and runs home. The proprietor tried hiding the pup but through the pile and came up with his favorite.

Chasing the dog did no good. So the store owner just adds each of Butch's "purchases" to the Van Buskirk account.

U.S. SUPREME COURT
RULES GOVERNMENT
CONTROLS STREAMS

Authority "Is As Broad As
the Needs of Commerce", Decree

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The Supreme Court ruled today, in a far-reaching decision, that the authority of the federal government over the nation's streams "is as broad as the needs of commerce."

Justice Reed delivered the 6 to 2 opinion, which held that the federal power commission may require the Appalachian Electric Power company to obtain a standard federal license for its dam and power project on New river near Radford, Va.

The attorneys general of Virginia and 40 other states had opposed the effort of the federal government to regulate the project on the ground that it constituted invasion of state rights.

Justice Reed said that New river was navigable, adding that "it cannot properly be said that the constitutional power of the United States over its waters is limited to control for navigation."

The opinion broadened greatly the regulatory authority of the federal government over streams.

Reed said that the Appalachian Power company meant by navigation "no more than operation of boats and improvement of the waterway itself." The opinion continued:

"In truth the authority of the United States is the regulation of commerce on its waters.

"Navigability, in the sense just stated, is but a part of this whole.
Flood protection, watershed development, recovery of the cost of improvements through utilization of power are likewise parts of commerce control."

Utility Properties Up:
State Will Benefit

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 16.—An extra half million dollars will be available to Ohio communities next year as the result of a rise in public property values.

Tax Commissioner William S.
Evatt said revenues would be swelled $455,200 through an increase of $22,760,300 in the valuation of utility properties on which local taxes are levied.

Revaluations and expansion of physical properties were given as reason for the advance. Total valuation of all public utility properties was $1,456,852,240.

BRITISH HELP
PLAN AWAITS
FDR'S RETURN

Elimination of All Obstacles Urged by Bloom of House Committee

FAVORS CHANGE
IN JOHNSON ACT

Points Out That Britain
Is Shouldering U. S.
Battle

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Elimination of all legal obstacles in the way of expedited aid to Great Britain was urged today by Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the house
foreign affairs committee.

Bloom outlined his position as the capital awaited the return of President Roosevelt who is expected to study all recent developments bearing on British aid.

The questions awaiting Mr.
Roosevelt's decision range from direct financial assistance to a transfer of more destroyers and the implied request for outright naval assistance which Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, made in the speech delivered a few hours before his abrupt death last Thursday.

"If World Survives"

The President's preoccupation with foreign affairs, in which British aid is an important element, was indicated yesterday by a remark he made to patients at the Foundation for Infantile Paralysis in Warm Springs, Ga., where he stopped enroute back here from his Caribbean trip.

He told them, he hoped to be back for two weeks next spring "if the world survives," and his words recalled his prophetic utterance on leaving Warm Springs early in 1939, when he said he would be back in the fall if there were no war.

Bloom, advocating accelerated aid
to Britain, said specifically that, if Britain should desire credit for a stated purpose, he favored a change in the Johnson Act which now bans loans or credits to a nation in default of World war debts.

Repeat Is Urged

He likewise told newsmen that it might be better, considering world conditions, "to repeat the neutrality act and go back to international law." Such action would permit American ships to carry supplies to Britain, and thus help ease the burden on the British merchant marine which has lost hundreds of thousands of tons in the war at sea.

Prior to Bloom's announcement,
Chairman May (D-Ky) said Saturday night that when the next congress convened in January, he would introduce legislation for repeal of the Johnson Act because "England, in effect, is fighting our battle. If England should be defeating, we, in reality, would be fighting the battle now shouldered
by Great Britain."

Contracts Awarded

COLUMBUS, Dec. 16.—National defense contracts totaling $212-718.14 have been awarded Ohio
firms in five months by the army, navy, WPA and Federal Security agency, a compilation by the office of government reports showed today. The total did not include ordnance depots, housing contracts or navy commitments under $5,000.

Christmas Rush Swamps Postoffice;
Beardmore Asks Public Co-Operation

Extra Clerks and Carriers To Go On Duty Wednesday
To Speed Up Service

The Christmas mailing rush, which has already started, is expected to be on in earnest by the middle of this week, it was announced today by Postmaster A. E.
Beardmore who appealed for the cooperation of the public so that mail handling may be facilitated.

All parcels, cards and letters should be addressed plainly and completely, in ink, giving street address, box or rural route number. The sender's address should be in the upper left corner of the address side of packages.

Articles should be packed carefully and wrapped securely, but not sealed when a package bears a printed label.

The postmaster announced that the extra clerks and carriers who have been hired for the Christmas season probably will be put to work commencing Wednesday. An extra parcel post truck also will be placed in service and all parcels will be delivered quickly and as soon as possible.

Postmaster Beardmore explained that it is useless for persons to call the postoffice to inquire concerning some package they may be expecting. Postal workers will be too busy to look up a package for any individual. Anyway, he explained, gift packages are being rushed to homes as soon as they have been sorted.

"Don't call the postoffice unless absolutely necessary," he pleaded.
The postmaster also asked that the general public refrain from using the postoffice court and driveway as a parking lot. Recently a car parked at the rear of the postoffice was towed off the grounds. The area about the postoffice must be kept clear so that mail can be received and delivered without delay.

The current Christmas season is expected to prove one of the busiest in the history of the Salem postoffice.

Beardmore explained that written greetings such as "Merry Christmas" and "With Best Wishes" and names, numbers or symbols may be enclosed with third or fourth class mail. Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions, not of a personal nature. Other written additions are subject to letter postage. Letters can not be enclosed in parcels.

Christmas seals or stickers should not be placed on the address side of mail. Valuable parcels should be insured.

Trees, State Rules

Evergreens With Roots Attached Classed As Nursery Stock

LISBON, Dec. 16.—County Agent
Floyd Lower today announced that Christmas tree dealers who sell or offer for sale evergreens with roots attached will be required again this year to secure a state dealers license.

The information received here from State Director of Agriculture John T. Brown says that trees with roots are classed as nursery stock and all dealers of such stock are required to pay a fee of $10 under the new Ohio Plant Pest law which became effective Aug. 30, 1939.

Growers of evergreen are obliged to secure nursery inspection certificates for each place of business
where such trees are sold or offered for sale. Dealers in living Christmas trees who do not grow such stock but who buy and sell them on a consignment basis or otherwise are required to secure a dealer certificate for each separate place of business so operated.

Application blanks for dealer licenses may be obtained at the office of the agricultural extension service here, while application for dealer licenses should be made to the division of plant industry, Ohio department of agriculture.

A severe penalty, Section 1140-5
General Code of Ohio, has been established for violation of any of the provisions of the new plant pest act. No state license, other than the casual vendor's license, is required to sell out Christmas trees
without roots.

Red Cross to Send Ships
Across If Blockade
Is Lifted

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—The American Red Cross has made tentative arrangements to send food ships to hungry Europe—one to Spain and the other to unoccupied
France—it was learned authoritatively today.

Actual departure of the ships depends on a successful outcome of negotiations in progress between the United States and British governments, and the prospects there was considered good.

While unwilling to exert pressure on the beleaguered British government for a general lifting of the blockade, the state department, it was learned, is seeking permission for an American ship to proceed to Marseilles with a cargo of condensed milk and concentrated vitamin products for undernourished
children in unoccupied France.

The British government has ruled out any relaxation of the blockade
for food shipments to countries
occupied or dominated by Germany, blocking proposals for a large scale American relief program in continental Europe.

Seeking a continuance of Spain's neutrality, however, Britain has granted permits for some food shipments from South America to Spain, where need already is acute, and is understood to be willing to sanction the projected $1,000,000 ship-load of foodstuffs from the United States.

An authoritative American survey of food conditions in Europe,
now before the state department,
reported that none of the German-invaded countries would face actual starvation for another five to six months.

THEY WERE VIGILANT

On Dec. 15, just 149 years ago, our much discussed and revered forefathers obtained a lot of dry satisfaction out of the fact the "bill of rights" finally had gone into effect. They were relieved.

The Constitution was a fine document, they had been telling one another, but it wasn't specific enough about certain capers highly favored by politicians of the day; these capers, agreed most of the founding fathers, should be expressly forbidden. The price of liberty was eternal vigilance—not to take anything for granted. For instance:

Freedom of religion, speech, press, assembly and petition should be guaranteed specifically. If a man wanted to keep a gun in the house, that should be his business. No government should have the right to quarter a soldier on private premises without paying for it. The right of people to be secure in their own homes against political snoopers and sniffers should be stated plainly. Officious bureaucrats should be guarded closely in their power to deprive private citizens of their lives, liberties and property; also in their power to throw citizens into the jails and let them rot there simply for lack of a previously guaranteed right to have a speedy trial and the privilege of knowing who was behind the incarceration. Furthermore, to avert drumhead courts, greatly favored by despots since time immemorial, a citizen should be guaranteed a trial by jury, without excessive bail, fines or punishment. Last, but not least, hair-splitting lawyers should be prohibited from splitting hairs to the detriment of the afore-said rights, and if anything came up in the future not already covered by the Constitution or the bill of rights it was to be settled by the people, themselves, not by the politicians.

It would seem that 149 years ago when the foundations of liberty were being laid the people trusted no one, not even the men who were in charge of the job. By taking nothing for granted, they succeeded in tacking on a part of the Constitution that later became indispensable; they were vigilant.

OUR OWN PET WEEK

Due to Christmas falling on Wednesday, leaving only two preparatory days next week, this is going to be The Big Week. Therefore, in the interests of humanity in general, we do hereby resolve that:

It should be a week of pre-eminently good humor in all walks of life, said good humor to be manifest in all relationships between human beings and the week to be proclaimed by each participant in its hectic activities as I-Share-Remember-This-Is-Christmas week.

In furtherance of this eminently worthwhile cause it is further declared to be the sense of this department, too frequently preoccupied with such dreary matters as drawing hairline distinctions between what is good for mankind and what is bad for mankind, that what is good for mankind is a friendly grin.

We bespeak special attention for overworked clerks, drivers of motor conveyances, particularly those engaged in public service, footsore postmen, harassed messengers, Christmas shoppers who don't know exactly what they want but are in the market for something, mothers worried about getting everything done in time to sit down a few hours and get a little peace and quiet, and fathers who are looking forward glumly to meeting the January rent.

Perhaps a grin won't help in some of these cases, but it can't do any harm—and Christmas is the one time of the year when the least worthwhile of us all are tempted to want not to do harm, while the worst are tempted to do a lot of good.

If there is no further discussion, the resolution will stand for adoption. All in favor of signifying by saying "Merry Christmas" as though they meant it from now on in to the finish.

STILL A SECRET

Don't get too curious, fellow citizens, because the cat won't be let out of the bag till next Jan. 4 when the votes are officially counted, but the electoral college is meeting today to elect the next president and vice president of the United States.

Of course, it doesn't meet, except in the sense that get-togethers of citizens in 48 different states might be called a meeting. The truth is, there isn't any such thing as an electoral college; it's not mentioned in the Constitution, so therefore it must be unconstitutional, irrelevant, immaterial, incompetent and un-American.

Some states, Ohio among them, even are tired of keeping up the pretense that voters don't elect the chief executive of the United States and the vice president, but merely electors who thereafter get their heads together and do the job in solemn conclave. They don't put the electors' names on the ballot any more; obviously, voters can't really elect someone whose name isn't on the ballot. That would be confusion doubled, redoubled and vulnerable.

Nevertheless, this is the day when the electoral college ghosts meet to elect the next president of the United States. Don't be surprised if it turns out to be Franklin D. Roosevelt next Jan. 4 when the electoral votes finally are counted.

GOATS

Blacked-out Italy can be depended on to keep almost everything under its hat, but to the extent that rumors of a coming "purge" are true they also were expected.

Under authoritarian setups, there must be goats for slaughter on the altar of government prestige. There have been goats in Germany and Russia; there will be goats in Italy.

The rumors say the goats are going to be called the middle class, which is also according to form; see Russia. Some of them may be Jews; see Germany. Someone must get killed outright, or at least battered around, to prove that the authoritarians still hold the upper hand. Once, in Rome, it turned out to be the early Christians who got slaughtered, being the best publicized and the most defenseless goats of their day.

THE STARS SAY:

For Tuesday, December 17

THE ASTROLOGICAL auguries for this day may be interpreted as rather perplexing or conflicting. There is a most decided urge to engage in social cultural or other activities where the sentimental, sympathetic and humanitarian proclivities may desire complete and generous expression, particularly in connection with groups or bodies of kindred objectives. Yet there are signs of such efforts being carried too far either by other enthusiasm and impetuosity or superiors may be found wanting in "seeing eye to eye."

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much happiness, with prosperity and general gratification, but more readily if they confine their activities to the purely personal—social, domestic or emotional—rather than in seeking public attention or tokens of preferment from those in high places or in collective efforts along humanitarian, cultural or social welfare lines. In such there is danger of over expansion, idealistic or probably impractical plans and programs.

A child born on this day may be blessed with many and diverse talents having much creative ability either in scientific, inventive or organizing forms, while also social, artistic, altruistic and romantic.

American observers are keeping a close watch on the war to discover what is the best equipment. Even at this distance from Albania, the ballet skirt for infantrymen seems to merit consideration.

"Make it thy business," said Cervantes, "to know thyself, which is the most difficult task in the world." Uh-huh—a difficult task that involves the risk of a shock.

It is said the Statue of Liberty is attracting an unusual number of visitors. Probably want to see if she's conscious of the situation.

In our relation to the gallant democracies, fighting for life, there's a growing tendency in this country to let the tail go with the hide.

It is extremely doubtful if the shakeup in the Italian army will do any good. What it needs is a windup, as it seems to be about run down.

Eyes Carry Weighty Load

Additional Strain Imposed By More Reading

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

The average school child must read fifteen times as much today as in 1900; the amount of reading the college student has to encounter is five times as much as in the previous period. The questionnaires on current events so often published in magazines indicate

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

That for a modern business man or club woman to keep abreast of the times requires an enormous amount of reading time—newspapers, magazines and books are all bigger and more numerous.

For a long time oral reading received the chief emphasis in the primary grades. Now silent reading has to a considerable extent taken its place. It is difficult for teachers to estimate how efficient this silent reading is. The Year Book Committee on Reading recommends specific periods for guidance in reading. No one knows how many students get into the higher grades handicapped by a fundamental inability to do efficient reading. No figures are available concerning the increase in the number of college failures due to reading disability.

Two new instruments have been developed—one which aids in measuring accurately reading ability (the Ophthalm-O-Graph) and one which corrects and trains reading habits (the Metron-O-Scope).

A brief description of what happens when you read will simplify an explanation of the two instruments. Normal eyes read in a series of swift jerks, pausing at intervals (scientists call these pauses fixations) to focus on a word or group of words. The amount of print recognized in a single fixation is termed the span of recognition.

If you are an efficient reader, there will be relatively few fixations—the average being eight to a ten-word sentence. An inefficient reader will have many more, and in addition will generally retrace in his reading (called regressions) to understand what has been read.

The Ophthalm-O-Graph is a picture camera which photographs light reflected from the eyes as one reads. The resultant film or reading graph reveals upon analysis the subject's reading habits, such as reading speed, fixations, span of recognition, and other data. The reader's comprehension is also checked in the usual way by questions based on the reading material. By comparison with reading standards, it can then be determined how efficiently the subject reads.

The Metron-O-Scope

The Metron-O-Scope has three shutters in front which open and close in sequence, exposing a third of a line of words printed on a reading roll which unfolds in the same manner as a player-piano roll. The subject is thereby forced to read correctly, for the operation of the machine will not permit him to pause excessively long or to retrace in his reading. In addition, the roll can be speeded up, teaching him by degrees to increase his reading speed.

Undoubtedly reading puts more of a strain on the eyes than the cinema. With the increased demands for intelligent reading, and the poor old human eye remaining the same, there is an imperative demand for the movie and the radio to assume the obligation of being more educational and more adult.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

"TRIAL WITHOUT JURY"

By JAMES RONALD

SYNOPSIS

Two misfortunes have befallen the otherwise happy Osborne family within twenty-four hours. First, its head, Stephen, age 50, lost his job; then, the next morning, a telegram from Aunt Octavia announces the visit that day of this rich but decidedly unappealing relative. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne urge their five children to be nice to her. Dorothy, 23; Ann, 19; Michael, 17; Marjorie, 14; and Peter, 12, agree to be like cats around a saucer of cream. The Osbornes have a veteran servant, Hannah Gale; and a visitor, "Uncle" Simon, elderly bohemian and author of parts. The latter, Stephen's cousin, abhors Octavia. Aroused all too soon from sleep, he's telling Ann why.

CHAPTER EIGHT

"You don't like Aunt Octavia," remarked Ann dispassionately. "Your perspicacity is amazing. I do not like your Aunt Octavia. I hate her. The very thought of the woman gives me a dark brown taste in my mouth and spots before my eyes. I'm a lifelong bachelor because I don't like women. It's the Octavia in 'em that I can't stand. Every woman's got a touch of Octavia. Every woman wants to manage people, to poke, to pry, to stop 'em doing whatever makes 'em happy and set 'em at what's supposed to be 'em good. No woman is content to leave things as they are; she wants to take them apart and put them together again in a new way of her own. Women are born interferers. You're one, and you know it. No sensible man likes women. Most men get entangled with 'em—poor devils!"

"Why this lecture on womanhood? I thought we were talking about Aunt Octavia."

"We were, but I want to sleep now. Call me about two. Don't bang the door as you go out."

"Don't be silly! You've got to get up this minute! She's coming at noon!"

"Uncle Simon groaned. 'She would! Trust Octavia to make things awkward for everyone. That means I've got to catch an early bus for Bradbury. And—good Lord!—this is going to be awkward! I suppose your father's at the office?'"

"No. He's in the garden."

"Good!" said Uncle Simon, brightening. "Run along, child. I'll be down to have a word with him in a minute."

"No you don't," said Ann sternly. "I know what you want to see him about. You're going to ask him for a loan. It's no good giving me that nasty look. You can't touch Daddy. He's lost his job."

"Los' his job!" Uncle Simon repeated in the incredulous tone he would have used had she said: "The skies have fallen!"

"Yes. I'm not supposed to know, but I heard father and mother talking. They're pretty upset about it. I suppose it is rather awful, although I know he always hated his work."

"Awful? It's catastrophic! At his age, with a wife and five children—well, on earth is he going to do?"

"I gather they plan to consult Aunt Octavia."

Uncle Simon laughed, a hollow, mirthful laugh.

"That's good. That's great. They are going to consult Aunt Octavia—just like that! The poor innocents, have they any conception of the magnitude of the task? Consult— you mean touch—Octavia! Ye gods!"

"You've been there, I gather?"

"Many a time and oft. And I'm an old and hardened touch artist. I know all the approaches, all the sinne gambits. If blood could be coaxed from a turnip, I could coax it. But I've never succeeded in separating your Aunt Octavia from a single red cent."

"Yes, but this is different. Daddy's her only brother. He's a respectable married man and he'll use the money wisely. After all, Aunt Octavia is bound to know what you'd do with any money she was soft enough to let you have."

"We'll let that pass. It stings—coming from my favorite niece—but we'll let it pass. You listen to me, Miss: I'll bet you a hundred to one in anything you like that Octavia turns your father down flat."

"It's a bet. She couldn't do it. I know she's hard but, after all, Daddy is her brother. She can't let him starve. Blood's thicker than water."

"Not Octavia's blood. Her veins flow with vinegar—iced vinegar, at that!"

Ann drew her knees up and rested her chin on them. She gazed thoughtfully at her uncle.

"Why is she so rich and Daddy so poor? Didn't she get her money from grandfather?"

"She did. A cool half million dollars. And she's bound to have twice that by now. I don't suppose she's spent a third of her income during the past twenty years."

"Why didn't grandfather leave daddy any?"

"It's a long story," said Uncle Simon, closing his eyes.

"I like long stories."

"Very well," Simon sighed. "As a boy, your father was a trifle gay. Don't look so interested. You aren't going to hear any scandal. When I say 'gay' I mean—oh, I don't know—fond of fun, perhaps; irresponsible, I suppose."

"I don't believe a word of it. It doesn't sound in the least like Daddy. But go on."

"When your grandfather was alive they were always fighting. He was a supercilious old boy, who took life sternly. Perhaps you can't blame him for that; he'd been married twice. Octavia was the only child of the first marriage, your father the only child of the second. At the time I'm talking about the old man was a widower for the second time and a bad heart was slowly but surely taking him to his spouses."

"Your father was a lad of twenty or thereabouts; Octavia was in her forties. You won't believe it, but she loved your father very much. She was like a mother to him. And when your grandfather died he left all his money to Octavia, whom he knew would take care of it. There was some sort of direction that she was to consider half the money her brother's and administer it on his behalf. But it was left entirely to her in what amounts he was to receive it. She was allowed to withhold both capital and income at any time she saw fit. I never read the will, but that's roughly the gist of it."

"So that, morally, half the money is daddy's?"

"Yes, but legally it's Octavia's. And if you depend on your moral rights in law courts you'll have a tough time. At first, Octavia played fair. She gave your father a generous allowance and promised to make over half the money to him—some day. But before that day came, he met your mother and fell in love with her. Octavia was furious."

"There wasn't anything the old gal could say against your mother. She'd have felt the same way about any woman her brother wanted to marry. She wanted to be the whole world to him, which is roughly what he was to her at that time. She behaved more like a jealous sweetheart than a loving sister. Her trump card was the money."

"If Stephen married without her consent," Octavia declared, she'd cut him off without a penny. He did marry. She cut him off. It happened twenty-four years ago and he's still cut off. That's why he's been slaving his heart out at an office desk all these years."

"But they've made up their differences. She comes every year to visit us."

"There's no making up with your Aunt Octavia. With her, quarrels may subside, but they never die."

For a long time Ann was silent. Her father, her mother, had loved like that, all those years ago. As long as they could have each other, money hadn't mattered. An office desk had been bearable. Money had meant little to them. It was rather splendid. Ann wondered if she would ever know a love like that; and thought she never would. For money was so terribly important; and love—to Ann—so very remote.

"If I were your father I'd find some way to get rid of Octavia," said Uncle Simon. "I've a good mind to do it anyway. It would solve a lot of problems. Your father would inherit her money—and I'd be able to touch—I mean, consult—him regularly for the rest of my life."

"Do you really think she would leave it to father?" asked Ann thoughtfully.

"To whom else could she leave it? Not me, that's a certainty; and she hasn't any other relatives. She can't stand dogs. She hates cats. She's never taken any interest in charity. Oh, I expect your father will get it in the end. But although she's over seventy, she'll probably hang on for another ten years—unless something happens—something decisive. I've a good mind to do it myself."

"And be hanged for murder," observed Ann shrewdly.

"That," replied Uncle Simon, "is the difficulty."

Ann stood up.

"Your breakfast is stone cold. Shall I make you some fresh coffee?"

"No, don't bother." He looked up at her with a wheedling smile. "Now, if there's a drop of whisky in the house—"

"If more old people would use ADLERIKA they would feel better. I'm 70 and have had it on hand for 14 years." (L. M. So. Dak.) For quick bowel action and relief from bloating gas, try ADLERIKA today. J. H. Lease Drug Co., and Broadway-Lease Drug.

"There is," said Ann coldly. "For emergencies."

"This is an emergency, my dear child."

"I mean, if people are ill."

"I'm ill. I'm a sick man. Honest I am."

"Let me see your tongue."

Uncle Simon opened his mouth and put out some inches of thick furriness. Ann took one look at it and ran to fetch the whisky.

Wrap up a THRILL in this Year's Holly Wreath!

Buick SPECIAL Sedan, $1052. White sidewall
tires extra.*

SUPPOSE, come Christmas morning, you took your wife to the front door, pointed out through the holly wreath — and there let her see a brand-new Buick standing at the curb!

A thrill? You bet — for the whole family!

Out of the question? Not at all. Look:

We're not suggesting that you add the cost of a new Buick to your Christmas budget.

But you probably will be buying a new car soon and we are simply proposing that you buy it now, a few months ahead of time — and make this a holiday long to be remembered.

We're suggesting that there's no time like the present to get back of that big FIREBALL Eight — no time like right now to start piling up gasoline mileage economies that run as high as 10% or 15%.

There's no time like holiday time to dress up yourself (and family) in smart, fresh Buick aerodynamic styling, or to introduce your brood to the roomy comfort of this Buicoid-craddled traveler.

You can do that—if you act promptly.

A trial ride to give you a hint as to what

Buick can do — a little figuring on your present car's worth (at today's trade-in values, not next spring's)—a little working out of convenient terms — and you'll have a FIREBALL to celebrate this Christmas!

How about it? It's one thing your wife would never expect — and just about the finest gift any man could give his family!

WINTER-PROOF CARS SURVIVE

Failure to Offset Cold-Weather Hazards May Prove Costly

Added improvements and comforts of modern motor cars should not cause one to neglect providing of full winter protection for an auto, according to the management of the Pennzoil Service Center of W. State st.

Ownership of a car having the latest engineering developments should prompt the driver to more carefully winterize before it is too late. Failure to protect the car against cold weather may result in serious damage, costly repair bills and unnecessary safety risks while on the highway.

The Pennzoil Service Center is equipped to completely winterproof a car or truck. Attention will be given the radiator by changing water, flushing and providing enough anti-freeze fluid to prevent any trouble, regardless of low temperatures.

Winter Lubricants

Serious damage to a motor or moving parts can be averted by use of The Pennzoil modern lubrication department. Complete draining of old, worn oil and removal of dirt grease are provided before proper lubricants for winter use are substituted.

Careful attention is given to properly lubricating transmission and differential of all models serviced. Trained attendants in the lubrication department check carefully to give the most efficient service possible.

Safer and more comfortable winter driving also is possible through use of auto accessories sold by the Pennzoil Service Center. These include tires, batteries and heaters, defrosters, fog lamps and other accessories in demand at this time of year.

BINGHAM, Me.—Maurice Monahan shot four bobcats in one week near Bald Mountain. He sold the pelts and got an additional $600 state bounty.

Automobiles at Work a Quarter Mile Underground

DETROIT, Mich. — Automobiles are called upon to perform useful chores in unusual places all over the world, but perhaps one of the strangest locations for motor cars to be in service is a quarter mile below a busy industrial city.

Down where they never feel the rigors of summer heat or wintry blasts, two Ford V-8 convertible coupes are busy every day in the International Salt company's Detroit rock salt mine, 1,135 feet underground.

Pictured here is one of the two cars that helped International solve a transportation problem in a mine some 20 miles from the bottom of the shaft. The wheel is Mine Foreman Edward Vipe, conferring with a workman at the "business end" of a corridor, where a shovel is scooping newly blasted salt into electric cars.

The other car is used by the mechanical trouble-shooter in keeping the mine's far-flung machinery in working order.

These cars are probably the only ones in the world thus occupied. At the same time that cars and trucks are moving along the paved streets of Detroit far above, the two Fords roll along smooth all-salt boulevards in a man-made underground city.

Driving always with headlights on, the pilots of these cars cover 25 miles a day. Temperatures in the mine never vary from 58 degrees the year around. Both cars retain their original finish. There isn't the slightest trace of rust or corrosion, despite the fact that they are surrounded by solid salt that is 98.3 per cent pure. License plates? They aren't needed for cars in this underground city.

PARIS FIGHTS WINTER WEAR

Odorless Cleaning Is Answer to Cold Weather Problems

First full days of wintry weather bring many new problems and worries to the person who wishes to be immaculately dressed.

At no other time of the year is the air more charged with soot and coal dust than at this season. The moist air is literally loaded with grime and elements which take the neatness out of clothing.

Clothing—men's, women's and children's—becomes soiled in the grime, rain and snow after a few trips from home. Business or pleasure trips make little difference in the toll of clothing neatness. Much of the dirt and moisture works its way into a fabric.

Care Always Given

Fortunately, there is in Salem a cleaning service which provides a satisfactory solution to the clothing problem at all seasons of the year. This service is that of Paris

Cleaners on Benton road. A new process of odorless cleaning provides a thorough and economical job without any harm to cloth of a garment.

Paris will send to your home for clothing, will dry clean and press it and return it to suit the customer's convenience. A department to repair and adjust garments is maintained.

Great care is given by the Paris shop in cleaning and pressing of women's garments. Pains-taking hand work is provided for evening gowns, furs and fur-trimmed garments receive special care and coats and overcoats of all kinds are revitalized.

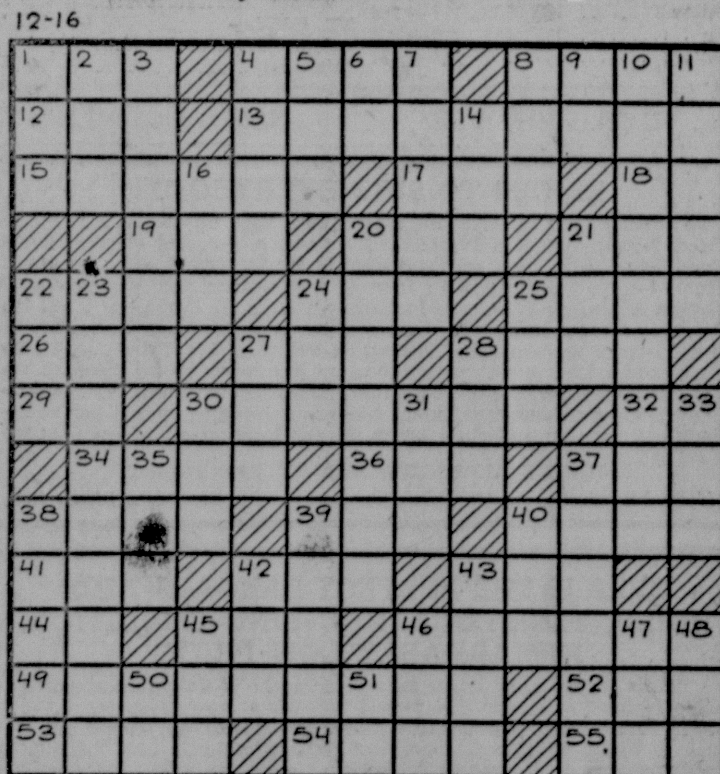

Instead of injury to fabrics, the Paris process cleans so gently that it softens and restores color and newness to a garment. Yet the cleaning is so thorough that life is added to many pieces of clothing. Skill, the best cleaning processes and solvents and extreme care result in it keeping its customers for many years.

Every kind of dry cleaning is given equally careful and thoughtful attention. Drapes, household fabrics are among the articles which can be restored to freshness and attractiveness. Extra life can be added to these household furnishings.

VARIED LINES SHOW QUALITY

Select Gift Now and Pay For It Conveniently Through Year

The worry and wait of Christmas shopping are needless if shopping is done at Art, the Jeweler's Christmas headquarters.

Two outs-and-in facts make Art's a mighty convenient place to do your Christmas shopping. One is that gifts may be purchased on the Art budget plan, which permits the purchaser to make his selection now, while stocks are new, fresh and complete.

Many purchasers are taking advantage of this method, which has proven eminently satisfactory for so many, who can make easy monthly payments throughout the year.

Another advantage to gift buying at Art's is that articles for practically any member of the family may be obtained there, including virtually everything in the jewelry line, radios and home appliances.

That well known "last minute" will be here before you know it.

Shows Excellent Stock
Art's stock this year is finer and more expansive than ever. The management comments that gift buyers in general are looking for better quality merchandise in practically every line, and every effort is being made to supply their wants, however minute.

In every line—watches, both for men and women, and even for the youngsters, too; rings of all types, necklace decorations, clocks, both utilitarian and decorative; table and buffet ware, silverware from the plants of quality manufacturers, radios, refrigerators—in every line Art is showing exceptional merchandise this season, and it is finding a ready response from Christmas shoppers.

ECONOMY FACTOR REVEALED BY TIME

Spending Too Little At First Sometimes Is Expensive

Spending too little is often a lot more expensive than not spending enough. Initially it may be cheaper to buy an article that will require early repair or replacement, but it is not economical. Cost, to be of any significance, has to be averaged over the number of years that the article lasts. Economy is money well spent; mere hoarding of unspent dollars gains nothing.

Cheapness should not be confused with economy. Economy means simplicity and good taste in design, convenience, satisfactory construction, and the conservation of materials and labor. Flimsy construction, ugly design and neglect are expensive.

This applies to the house as a whole and to each individual item . . . particularly woodwork, not only because it represents perhaps a fifth of the total cost, but be-

Balanced Rations Given In New Fortified Feeds

When crops are short, as is the case with corn this year, the feed industry is called upon to bridge the gap—that milk, eggs, and meat production may go on uninterrupted.

The feeding of supplements and fortified rations has long been accepted as an economic advancement but it takes a short corn crop to drive the facts home. Not that supplements and fortification of the rations take the place of grain but that they help grain to do a better job of making milk, eggs, beef, pork. It comes to the attention of the feeder in more forceful terms . . . if he is to maintain his production quotas and earning power with less corn he must find a means of supplement to increase the productive power of corn.

Corn Good Feed
Corn is one of the best animal feeds this country produces. So is water . . . but both need help even when they are plentiful . . . that's where the Salona Supply company fortified feeds come in to supply the elements of nutrition that corn, water and the legumes lack.

Today's poultry, turkeys, cattle, hogs and sheep are bred for high performance. Their ability to produce far exceeds that of their ancestors and has been instilled in them only after years of painstaking selecting and breeding. In order to capitalize on their ability to produce, the feeder, through the services of the feed processor, has improved his feeding methods. Nutritionists have been busy with research. They have applied available knowledge to perfect feeds which will bring about performance far greater than "corn and water" or "mixed grains" of earlier days.

For hens to produce 200 eggs per year, cows to produce 500 pounds of butterfat and meat animals to put on high quality meat rapidly, many ingredients have been added to the old time rations. Each has earned its place in the ration through results in the feed lot.

Vitamins, complex in their nature, must be present if health, production and reproduction are to be maintained. No less important are the trace elements, Iodine, Manganese, Cobalt, Iron, Copper, etc., each have their important role to perform.

The Salona Supply Co., fortified feeds supply these elements in balance and it is this balance that fortifies corn and other grains in doing their job of making production profitable.

Profitable feeding is not often, if ever, the cheapest feeding but profitable feeding will produce more money for the feeder.

E. E. Bower, general manager of the Salona Supply company on W. Pershing st., has made a study of farm animal and poultry feeds and has tested them under many conditions. The information derived from these studies are free to anyone interested. It would pay any feeder to consult Mr. Bower regarding any feeding program.

Lisbon Gains Sensational 28-18 Win Over Quakers; First Victory Since 1919

Salem Lads Appear Lost As Blue Devils Play Fighting Brand of Ball; Brownmen Trail In Every Period

A keyed-up Lisbon High school basketball team completely outfought, outplayed and outscored a punchless Salem crew to gain a 28 to 18 victory over their ancient rivals from Quakertown Saturday night on the Lisbon court.

The upset came as a shock to Salem supporters on the heels of the local team's decisive win over Youngstown Chaney Friday. It was the first Lisbon basketball triumph over Salem since 1919.

For three quarters the Red and Black passers appeared to be completely lost as the victory-hungry Blue Devils chalked up 24 points to Salem's 10. The local lads finally found themselves in the last period, scoring eight points while Lisbon accounted for four, but the damage had been done.

Make County Good
However, the county seat boys deserve all the credit that is due to them. They fought hard and showed unwavering accuracy on some of their shots. The responsibility for the loss does not rest with any one Salem player. The principal reason for the disaster was their inability to function as a team.

Forwards Pannier and Robinson led the Lisbon scoring with nine and eight points respectively. Mike

Derringer, Werber And Frey Sign Up

CINCINNATI, Dec. 16 — Queen city fans were assured today of familiar faces in their world champion Cincinnati Reds' infield as Manager Warren C. Giles announced that signed contracts had been received from Paul Derringer, Bill Werber and Linus Frey.

In announcing the one-year agreements, Giles gave no salary figures.

Derringer, who won more than 20 games for Cincinnati in each of the last three seasons on the mound, will be starting his eighth campaign with the Reds; second baseman Frey, his fourth, and Third baseman Werber, his third.

Pitcher Bucky Walters, another 20-game winner, and First baseman Frank McCormick are under two-year contracts signed last year.
